The Intelligencer. WHEELING, W. VA., MAY 3, 1887.

Two Poluts on the Camden Side, Mr. Camden's friends make the strong point that there must be some way to determine the party will. They point to the entered into a contract with the receiver, caucus as being the accepted way in bodies by which oil from its pipes was carried at of delegated powers. They argue that if 10 cents per barrel, and Rice's at 35 cents, every man is to pull his own way there is and out of every 35 cents received from Rice the receiver paid over to the Standard 25 cents.

cus lo formulate a national economic policy for the Democratic party and for the country?

The Intelligencer is no Yaukee to answer its own questions; and so this one is left to the Democrats assembled in Charles ton, in the hope that it may serve to relieve the tedium of the extra session.

part of our protective policy.

Information About the Stomach.

nearly vertical than horizontal.

2. An empty stomach, if in good tone, is always tabular.

3. A tubular stomach should be the rule on rising.

4. Non-irritating liquids pass directly through the tubular stomach.

5. They do likewise if the stomach contains food, and in such cases purs along the lesser curvature.

tains food, and in such cases pass along the lesser curvature.

6. The morning mucus contained in the stomach hinders or retards digestion.

7. Water drank before meals dilutes and washes out this nucue, stimulates the gastro-enteric tract to peristalis, and causes hyperamia of its lining membrane, thus greatly siding digestion as well as elimination.

8. Cold water should be given to those who have the power to react, while warm or hot water must be administered to all others.

ficial in preventing the formation of un-absorbable parapeptone.*

10. It is perfectly proper to drink water before, during and after meals.

And a Chapter in the History of the Stand ard Oil Company. To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sin:-To the instances of "morality" and "fairness" in the management of the Standard Oil Company mentioned in your a interesting editorial to-day many others night be added. Perhaps you will give space for the recital of one, which, though occurring after Mr. Camden's literary effort in the North American Review, effort in the North American Review, is a strictly in line with his protege's whole ducation, training and character. The people are, fortunately, becoming more and more aroused to the importance of these mattern—oven if their legislators are not.

In 1885 complaint was made to Judge Baxter of the United States Court, in Ohio, of discrimination made by the receiver of the Cleveland & Marietta Railroad, in favor of the Standard Oil Company. The judge cited the receiver before him and investigated. It was found that, in the Mackaburg oil country, all the pipes for conveying oil to the railroad, except those owned and used by George Rice, were owned and controlled by the Standard Company, and that, to get rid of the competition with Mr. Rice, it is the matter of t of delegated powers. They argue that if every man is to pull his own way there is an end of party authority and of party organization. Upon the assembling of the Legislature in January these considerations were pressed upon certain members who were disposed to kick, and they had the effect to etrengthen the lines in some weak places.

The other point in Mr. Camden's favor is that he is a protectionist—an unusually strong one for a Democrat. It is not the present purpose to discues this point, but rather to apply to it the argument of the supremacy of the caucus.

The caucus that convenes in Washington in the name of the Democratic party is a free trade caucus. This is not speculation, this is history. It will be as true of the Democratic caucus of the next Congress as of its predecessors. But the element of the Democracy with which Mr. Camden is in affiliation on the tariff question, refuses to be bound by the caucus fee trade odict. Carlisle and Morrison and their lik fix up a free trade measure, and Randall and his following go into open rebellion against the caucus edict. We understand Mr. Camden to be in sympathy with that revolt.

What the INTELLIGENCES took the floor to ask, as a privileged question, is, whether in the opinion of Mr. Camden and his friends the caucus to nominate a Democrat for United States Senator is more binding in its nature than the caucus to formulate a national economic policy for the Democratic party and for the later of the people of the first party and of the railroad,—though it has been popularly supposed that only the State could exercise this power. But then, this corporation has been known to control legistres, and so rule States. Mr. Payne is believed to represent, in the United States Senator is more binding in its nature than the caucus to formulate a national economic policy for the Democratic party and for the Wheeling, April 30.

MARK TWAIN IN THE WAR. Buttle in Which the Opposing Force Wa

At a banquet of Union Veterans in Baltimore Friday night, Mark Twain gave his war history, as follows: When your secretary invited me to this

A few years ago Admiral Porter, in a magazine article, predicted that in the fullness of time this country is to be overrun by Mongolian herdes from China. His opinion at that time was that the yellow skins would swarm like rate on this continent, and that with all our millions we should be unable to result a conquest destined to result in converting the United States into the seat of a vast Mongolian empire on the American continent.

Perhaps Admiral Porter is wrong, as we think he is. But how much better off shall we be if the swarms come from Europe instead of Asia, corrupting the current of our national life, impoverishing our people with the burden of the support of an enormous dependent class, saddling us with largely increased taxation to hold in check the hordes of criminals spewed out of Europe, throwing our wage-carners into a swage struggle for bread with the desperate, disappointed masses of bread-hunters from the old countries?

Tenning nather which he ead to clear up a matter which he ead to dispute and bad dlong been a subject of dispute of dispute and bread to clear up a matter which he said had long been a subject of dispute and bad blood in war circles in this country—to wit: the true dimensions of my military services in the Civil War, and the effect which they do on the general feat. The monumental centure of the the time to five the monumental feature of my campaign was the one battle which my command fought—it was in the Civil War two weeks. In that brief time I recognize the importance of this thing to improve the monumental feature of my campaign was the one battle will be my command fought—it was in the Civil War two weeks. In that brief time I recognize the importance of the statile, and in prove the feet was in the Civil War, and the effect which have come prepared. Here are the details. I was in the Civil War two weeks. In that brief time I recognize the importance of this thing to details. I was in the Civil War two weeks. In that brief time I recognize the importance of this the ci rennion of the Union Veterans of Mary-bread with the desperate, disappointed masses of bread-hunters from the old countries?

Given the malcontents, the criminals, the insane, the lame, the nait and the blind to contend with as fast as Europe can pour thear in upon us, and the condict of the sges would be fought out over the ruins of American homes. We should flee in despair to the sheltering arms of a of them. for the other man died in the the ruins of American homes. We should flee in despair to the sheltering arms of a "strong government" such as freemen have never yet willingly submitted to; the end of our free Republic would come sooner than the prophets of evil have predicted.

They are swarming in on us now at the rate of about two thousand a day, giving promise of such a year for immigration as the country has never known. For the most part miserable men and women, they come to enter at once into competition with American men and women just getting on their feet after long depression, or to be supported in asylums and almothouses by the toilers of the land.

What are going to do about it? We have the same power to protect ourselves against killing immigration as sgainst destructive importation; and the wage-earners of the country complain with reason that the latter power is used and the other, of equal moment, has scarcely entered into the consideration of a broad anational policy.

The reason tor action has never been so great as now, and it is not likely to be less; so that if we have any statesmanship if may as well begin at once to direct itself to one of the greatest questions that this country will ever have to meet.

The way to meet it is to bar the doore, and exercise as strict as surveillance over immigrant smuggling as over merchandise smuggling—not to keep out all immigrants, but to keep out every one that we don't want. This departure must form our postetive policy.

I began, and exterminated the opposing force every time—every two weeks—where would your war have been? Why, you see yourself, the conflict would have been too one-sided. There was but one honorable course for me to pursue, and I pursued it. I withdrew to private life, and gave the Union canes a chance. There, now, you have the whole thing in a nutshell; it was not my presence in the Civil War that determined that tremendons contest—it was my retirement from it that brought the crash. It left the Confederate side too weak.

"Thank you, I believe I will. Very fine weather we're having."

"Yes, sir. Take the easy chair."

"Thank you—pray don't put yourself to any trouble for me."

"Certainly not. Was my sister well when you left?"

"Quite well, I'm pleased to say. By the way, Mrs. Dollinger, I have a little work here which I would like to show, as I am sure you would be interested in it, it is called 'Daniel in the Lion's Den, and is by the Rev. Thomas Denteronomy, and it comes in.twelve parts exquisitely bound in cloth, leather or extra Russia, is finely illustrated and should be in every library, and I am taking hundrede of orders as you can see by examining this order book, and everybody is wild over it and all pronounce it the most wonderful book written since the Holy Scriptures, it treats of Daniel in ten stages, when he got silitle further in, when he got clear in, when the lions came up to examine him, while they were making their survey, while they retired to consult together, when they decided a post-mortem would be necessary, when they announced the result to Daniel, when he convinced them that he would not consent to an autopsy, when the lions retired and Daniel got out embellished with numerous cuts, plans, maps and beautiful steel engravings, comes at $1 a part-or $12 for the entire work, put your name down here and pay as you receive each part, eleven parts now ready—here is a fountain pen, write under Mr. Brown's name at the bottom of the page."
